

Do you ever shy away from talking about God, Jesus or faith with your child because you are afraid they might ask questions you can't answer?

As a staff person of a church or school, have you had adults ask you what would be a good bible, resource or gift for a child?

Do you wrestle with how God fits in your life or in certain life situations?

Would you like to find more fulfillment in your life or vocation?

Are you a grandparent of children who do not attend worship and/or Sunday school?

Our RESOURCE CENTERS can help you with those questions!

We have selected resources from over 100 publishers, as well as those developed by The Youth & Family Institute, that will help you explore answers to your faith questions and equip you, your children and grandchildren in passing on faith.

Sharing the faith does not require that people have all of the answers . . . just that they know where to locate good resources.

"There was a time not too long ago when parents, pastors and other congregational leaders were comfortable entrusting their children and youth to the programs of the local congregation, with some assurance that the Christian faith would be passed on in the process. That time has passed."
